

Animal handling, care and well-being, environmental issues associated with animal production, use of antibiotics in animal production, food safety, animal health, international trade and emergency management...these are just a few areas that the National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA) tackles on behalf of animal agriculture: the beef, dairy, swine, sheep and goat, poultry and equine industries.

NIAA is the only national organization that brings ALL of animal agriculture together and whose membership is equally as deep: producers, animal health professionals, government regulatory personnel, academia, researchers, extension specialists and allied industry organizations as well as national and state organizations affiliated with animal agriculture.

The NIAA is a 501(c) (3) non-profit, membership-driven organization that unites and advances animal agriculture—it is the ONLY organization that encompasses all livestock species, works to have all of animal agriculture together on critical issues, and considers the big picture for the benefit of all of animal agriculture.

The NIAA relies on membership fees and donations so the organization can tackle issues, advance solutions and provide continuing education and communication to animal agriculture professionals. NIAA is unique in that it has a membership base and Board that represent the most comprehensive scope of industries of any such organization. Like any non-profit organization, the level of work that NIAA can accomplish highly depends on dollars available.

With 2009 just a few weeks away, now is the ideal time to make a tax deductible donation to NIAA. Your donation will be used wisely to position animal agriculture in a positive light, to fight the negative attacks placed on animal agriculture and ensure the future of the livestock and poultry industries.

NIAA needs your continued support to guarantee that we are your source for information, education and solutions to animal agriculture. Now is the time for animal agriculture to stand together as one voice.

For additional information regarding your donation opportunities: Phone: 270.782.9798. Or simply send your check payable to NIAA, 1910 Lyda Ave., Bowling Green, KY 42104-5809. Your contribution is tax deductible and NIAA's Tax ID number is 61-1360046.

Your financial assistance will continue to support this stake-holder driven organization that unites and advances animal agriculture.

Thank you for considering this donation opportunity to help support and preserve animal agriculture.
